

Amrit Sagar Charitable Trust learning Center

Amrit Sagar Charitable Trust was founded in October 1998 by Mrs. Anju Gupta and Dr. Girija Khanna. In the past four years it has focused in the field of education for underprivileged children and marginalized women. We offer educational scholarships for students and give help for books and uniforms as well. The Trust runs three Learning Centre's where poor children get an opportunity to learn different crafts and hobbies and get quality holistic academic education after school hours. Additionally, a Library for children and adults at the ASCT Centre for Learning with over seven hundred books serves as a community library for families in and around the area. The computer training offered at ASCT Centre helps poor students, teenagers and women to gain computer knowledge.

Under our Medical Welfare Scheme we give health counselling to women and children at the ASCT Centre twice a week.

Our vision is to expand & grow with determination & compassion to reach out to as many as possible. Join hands with ASCT to reach out to more children to provide them with a meaningful opportunity in this wonderful gift – life. With your support, we can serve with compassion to enrich their life and have a feeling of having made some difference.

We know that different people can support at different levels. Here are some options for you to consider.
